METEOROLOGY.

General Remarks.—There is a marked variation in climate between the different parts of Ceylon. In the low-country, with a mean temperature of the order of 80° F., a noticeable feature is the small range of both temperature and pressure; there is, however, wide divergence between the moist conditions in the south-west of the Island, where the average annual rainfall varies from 100 to 200 inches, and the dry zone areas of the north, north-west, and south-east.

2. Inland, with altitudes reaching 8,000 feet, the temperature is cooler and shows a bigger range; there is a corresponding change in vegetation, and the conditions are altogether more akin to those in the temperate zone.

3. Rainfall.—The highest annual rainfall registered was at "Carney Estate," Ratnapura, which had a total of 266·82 inches, and 212 days on which rain fell. The lowest annual rainfall was at Mantota, which had a total of 25·85 inches in 39 days. The stations with the highest and lowest average annual rainfall are, respectively, Padupola, with 220·25 inches in 202 days, and Marichchukkaddi, with 33·03 inches in 56 days. The longest drought occurred at Kalpitiya, lasting for 85 days, June 27 to September 19. The longest wet period occurred at Padupola, lasting for 47 days, April 11 to May 27.

The annual rainfall at Colombo (Cinnamon Gardens) was 96·81 inches in 192 days. At Kandy 91·33 inches were registered in 193 days, while the annual rainfall at Nuwara Eliya was 91·88 inches in 206 days. On the whole, the annual rainfall was much in excess of that of the average in the south-west of Ceylon, in slight excess upcountry, and in deficit elsewhere.

4. Temperature.—The station showing the highest mean shade temperature for the year was Trincomalee, with 84·4° F., and the lowest Nuwara Eliya, with 60·7° F. The figures for Colombo and Kandy were 81·0° F. and 77·1° F., respectively.

The highest shade temperature recorded during the year was 101·6° F. at Trincomalee on May 25. The highest on record is 103·7° F. at Trincomalee on May 12, 1890.

The highest shade temperature at Colombo in 1915 was 97·2° F. on February 23.

The mean daily range, i.e., the difference between the mean of the maximum and the mean of the minimum, was highest at Nuwara Eliya (19·1° F.), and lowest at Galle (8·0° F.). At Colombo and Kandy it was 12·0° F. and 14·9° F., respectively. The absolute range for the year, i.e., the difference between the highest and the lowest readings actually recorded, was greatest at Nuwara Eliya (44·3° F.), and least at Galle (21·1° F.).

Meteorological Observatories.—Table I. gives the approximate positions of the sixteen principal meteorological stations.

In the cases of Mannar and Hakgala the elevations are only estimated by barometer comparisons.

All these stations are supplied with the following instruments:—Maximum air thermometer, minimum air thermometer, maximum wet bulb thermometer, minimum wet bulb thermometer, terrestrial radiation thermometer, and rain gauge. Solar radiation thermometers in vacuo were formerly in use, but have been withdrawn. The coast stations are supplied with barometers, anemometers, and wind vanes; in addition there is a barometer at Ratnapura, a wind vane and anemometer at Diyatalawa, and there are self-recording barographs, thermographs, pluviograph, and hygrograph at Colombo, barograph and pluviograph at Trincomalee, and a thermograph and hygrograph at Diyatalawa. Also a barograph at Hambantota, and barothermograph at Nuwara Eliya.

A Beckley self-recording anemograph is in use on the Surveyor-General's Office at Colombo (Fort).

Besides these stations there are 231 rain-gauge stations, most of which report monthly, though daily telegrams are sent from Chilaw, Kalutara, Hatton, Kegalla, and Watagoda. Including the first class stations there are 247 rain-gauge stations in all, of which 135 have an annual average rainfall of over 75 inches. Details are supplied in Table XXV. and the rainfall maps at the end of the report.

Table II. shows the extremes of temperature and pressure recorded in 1915. The highest shade temperatures shown in any of the existing records are 103·7° on May 12, 1890, at Trincomalee, and 103·0° on September 30, 1887, at Anuradhapura. Ratnapura, Mannar, Jaffna, Batticaloa, and Kurunegala all claim to have passed 100° F. at some time or another. In previous reports it has been customary to give the extreme values ever recorded at each station, but an examination of some of the material from which these figures were taken has cast doubt on so many of these "records" that the columns have been deleted.

AIR TEMPERATURE.

Table III. gives the average mean monthly temperature of various stations derived from all available records. The means adopted are the arithmetical means between the maximum and minimum readings of each successive twenty-four hours.

Table IV. gives the average daily range for each month, and, like Table III., shows several deviations from its immediate predecessors on account of the recent examination of past returns.

Table V. shows the deviation of the 1915 mean temperature from normal. The temperature, generally, was in excess of that of the normal, the excess being most marked to the north and east.

Table VI. gives the detail of temperature in 1915. The Stevenson screen is not in use in Ceylon; the instruments are exposed in open sheds from 8 to 10 feet square, whose sides are usually enclosed by wire netting. At Galle and Hambantota light wooden trellis replaces the wire netting.

WET-BULB TEMPERATURES.

These are dealt with in Tables VIII. to XI., while the matter of Tables XII. and XIII. is dependent on them.

For many purposes it would be well if the wet-bulb thermometer could take the place now held by the ordinary dry-bulb, since its readings are more closely allied to the human sensations than those of the dry instrument. In fact, the human body is itself a "wet-bulb" thermometer of considerable sensitivity, though of somewhat uneven graduations, so that there is a very good case for regarding this instrument as the fundamental one, and not merely as an accessory to be used as an "assistant" to the dry-bulb in finding the humidity. Direct determinations of the dew-point have led me to doubt the suitability of the Glaisher factors for use in Ceylon. The sharp changes in altitude make it almost certain that a formula involving the barometer must be used.

Table XII. gives the relative humidity of the various stations as deduced from the 9.30 A.M. and 3.30 P.M. readings by means of the formulæ adopted in the Indian Table Book.

The figures in Table XI. will enable anyone who wishes to obtain the humidity on any particular formula to do so.

The arrangement of the wet-bulbs here is the double cup arrangement described in the 1910 Report. As in the case of the dry-bulbs, the Stevenson screen is replaced by an open shed.

ATMOSPHERIC PRESSURE.

The standard barometer at Colombo Observatory is No. 594 by Casella, and is of the Fortin type. It was originally standardized at Kew, and has since (1907) been compared by means of a travelling instrument with the Indian standard. The rest of the outstation barometers reported here are of the self-adjusting type described in the 1909 Report, i.e., with wider base cisterns than are usually found in the Kew type of instruments. They have all been standardized by comparison with the Colombo instrument.

Table XIII. gives the averages up to date reduced to the present altitudes of the instruments, and Table XIV. gives the offsets of the 1915 figures from these averages. The question of eliminating doubtful work from this table was gone into in detail in the 1911 Report, so need not be referred to at length here.

All the figures given in the next three tables are corrected for temperature, but not for altitude or latitude. To obtain mean sea level equivalents, add 0·001″ for each foot of altitude of the stations which were given in Table I. [This correction only applies to the coast stations, and cannot be used for the higher inland stations.]

WIND.

Wind Direction.—Observations are taken at the coast stations at 9.30 A.M. and 3.30 P.M. Table XVI. gives the number of times that each of eight directions and calms were noted, parallel columns giving figures for 1915, and for averages up to 1915 inclusive. A mean direction giving the trigonometrical resultant of these figures is computed for those months that justify such a course; for this purpose directions are given in angle N = 0°, E = 90°, S = 180°, and W = 270°, and computations are to the nearest 5°.

In many months the distribution is irregular, and an attempt to express the resultant by a single angle would be misleading, so has been relinquished; e.g., suppose the wind blows from the N.E. for 25 observations, from N.W. for 10, and from S.W. for 25, mathematically the N.E. and S.W. constituents cancel and we are left with a mean direction of N.W. for the month, although for five-sixth's of the month the wind was at right angles to this (e.g., March, Puttalam, is a good example).

The Colombo figures are from the Observatory, not the Fort.

Wind Velocities.—In Table XVII. the daily movement as measured by anemometers of the Robinson type is given.

A difficulty arose here owing to the change of factor that was adopted in 1906 by the Meteorological Office. Thus, the old Beckley instrument at Colombo (Fort) was graduated on the old system, and required reducing to be comparable with current readings.

In the case of Trincomalee the site has varied so much that, irrespective of any question of instrumental variation, it was unwise to attempt comparisons between the present site on Fort Frederick and the old figures, some of which were taken close to the shore at the Public Works Department compound.

In this report the averages have been standardized to the new Meteorological Office value, and hence are considerably less than those in previous reports.

In most cases this means that all returns prior to 1910 have been reduced 25 per cent., the instruments set up in December, 1910, being usually the first for which the new factor was used.

The most casual comparison with an old report will be sufficient to show the advantage of the alteration.

As in the case of the cloud observations, an examination of the offset of any month from the annual average is not seriously affected by the chief difficulties that militate against the accuracy of the absolute readings.

A Beckley self-recording instrument is in use at Colombo (Fort), and two locally made self-recording instruments are in use at the Colombo Observatory.

The values given in Table XVIII. are derived from the Beckley at the Fort, using the new factor.

CLOUD PROPORTION.

Table XIX. gives statistics on this point obtained by observations at 9.30 A.M. and 3.30 P.M.

The figure 10 denotes an absolutely cloudy sky and 0 an absolutely clear one. Intermediate figures are arrived at by estimating the proportion of the sky covered by cloud, for which purpose the area within 10° of the horizon is neglected.

Absolute values based on such estimation are bound to be affected by the personality of the observer, so that a slight caution is necessary in interpreting them.

Most of the danger is eliminated by comparing the cloud proportion of each month with the annual mean. Returns from an observer who consistently over-estimates the amount of cloud would not introduce an appreciable error into such a graph, since each over-estimated month is compared with an equally over-estimated mean.

RAINFALL.

Tables XX. to XXIII. give the summary of rainfall for the principal stations; Table XXIV. gives the chief intensities as measured by the self-recording instrument at Colombo; and Table XXV. gives the full detail from all the rain-gauge stations, arranged alphabetically.

Table XXVI. gives the periods of drought and wet at all stations, a day being reckoned as wet if 0·01 inch is recorded.

Taking the year as a whole, the annual rainfall was much in excess of that of the average in the south-west, in slight excess upcountry and in deficit elsewhere.

RETURN OF PRISONS AND PRISONERS.

Replies to the Questions, compiled from the Returns of the respective Superintendents.

QUESTION I.

If the prison is on the separate system, is the separation complete ? And if not, what is the separation enforced by day and night, respectively ?

All the penal stage prisoners of the Island, if sentenced to over a month, are passed through one of the following jails :—Welikada, Kandy, Jaffna, Anuradhapura, Galle, and Batticaloa.

In these jails the penal stage prisoners are worked on the separate system. They are confined in separate cells, and are worked in stalls. They are marched from their cells to the stalls in single file three paces apart, and are not allowed to speak or communicate with each other at all. Prisoners not in penal stage are not worked on the separate system.

QUESTION II.

If not on the separate system, what provision is there for the supervision of the prisoners while in association ?

The males are supervised by male officers of various grades, and the females by matrons, in all jails.

QUESTIONS III. AND IV.

How many cells are there ; and how many associated wards ? Taking the average number of prisoners in jail, how many cubic feet of space are there for each prisoner during the hours of sleep ?

Jails.	Cells.	Wards.	Average cubic feet of space during 1915.
